It's a Boy!

Congratulations goes out to Joey, a member of our KCCA crew. Joey and his wife welcomed their newborn baby boy. Liam Joseph was born Jan. 20th 6lbs. 6oz. He is a very healthy and happy baby with a happy mom and dad. So next time you see Joey working around KCCA congratulate him and welcome Liam to the crew.

Home of the Month

We are skipping the Home of the Month this month. In its place are some photos of the recent winter storm. For those of us who love snow (count me in), it was a welcome break in the monotony of staying at home. We were very lucky that we did not lose power, but there were several trees and limbs down. The snow did not stop some of our intrepid walkers, who enjoyed the winter wonderland.

Here are a few photos of the snow, including a very busy snowman! Our Home of the Month will return next month and we should have some early spring landscaping coming to life!

Ride Connection

As older Oregonians start to sign up for their coronavirus vaccination appointments, a local nonprofit says it is doing its part to make sure they get there.

The Portland company Ride Connection provides transportation services to people with limited options in the Portland metro area.

Ride Connection CEO Julie Wilcke-Pilmer says they are taking new steps to get residents with a scheduled coronavirus vaccination to their appointments.

“Normally we say call four days in advance, but we’re saying if you have a vaccine appointment for the following day, we’re more than happy to schedule a ride for you,”

said Wilcke-Pilmer.

The transportation service is free to use for residents who qualify.

People interested can call their number at 503.226.0700 to see if they qualify, and otherwise see what transportation options are available to them.

“Seniors have already been calling and scheduling trips to those appointments, and we just expect that type of trip growing exponentially as more vaccines become available,” said Wilcke-Pilmer.

Residents who are enrolled in the Oregon Health Plan can use free options like Health Share of Oregon or Trillium, however if you contact Ride Connection, they’ll make sure a ride is available to you.

“We’re trying to work with those that are supporting people getting the vaccination appointments too, so that they have the information too,” said Wilcke-Pilmer.

When is KCCA opening?

Committees met the first week in February to talk about plans to safely open amenities. Once committees have their plan, then it goes to the KCCA BOD for approval. Nothing can proceed without the Board's approval.

But, you actually play a big role in this happening.

That's because each of us has to manage three elements to get to the point of opening.

We have to have understanding... of what the governor's mandates for opening are and what we, as an association, can and cannot do. This will not be a return to "normal," so that leads to the next point.

Acceptance...we each have to first have an understanding, then we need to accept the temporary but required new guidelines. We may not like some of them; we may think they are overkill, but remember, we don't live in a perfect world. This last year fighting the virus has surely taught us that.

Patience...oh boy, we need a lot of that. If we understand and we accept the detailed guidelines the state is setting (we fall under the regulations for Senior Centers), then we won't be disappointed with how and when we do open KCCA amenities and club activities

Hang in there... Every day is closer to KCCA opening!

Did you Know? St Patrick's Day

We all know the main legend about Saint Patrick, the patron saint of all things Irish. He was said to have driven all the snakes out of Ireland, and they have no snakes on their island even today.

Today it's a day of celebrating the legend of this Irish saint. It is customary to wear a shamrock, green clothing or green accessories, particularly drinking Irish beer or cider and Irish whiskey. Saint Patrick's Day celebrations have been greatly influenced by those developed among the Irish diaspora, especially in North America. Until the late 20th century, Saint Patrick's Day was often a bigger celebration among the diaspora than in Ireland. The Saint Patrick Day custom of "drowning the shamrock" or "wetting the shamrock" was historically popular, especially in Ireland.

What do we know about the man himself? He was born in Roman Britain; his actual birthplace is unknown with any certainty. His father was Calpornius, a decurion and a deacon. His grandfather Potitus said to be a priest from Bonaven Tabernia. He was a 5th century Romano-British Christian missionary and bishop in Ireland. Legend has it that at the age of 16, St. Patrick was kidnapped by Irish raiders and taken as a slave to Gaelic Ireland. Spending a few years working as a shepherd, God allegedly told Patrick to go to the coast where a ship would be waiting for him to take him home. Patrick went on to become a priest.

Tradition holds that he died on March 17th and was buried at Downpatrick in Ireland. Over the following centuries, many legends grew up around Patrick, and he became Ireland's foremost saint.

Pet Health Concerns

Submitted by Chris Walbridge

Winter brings certain pet concerns that we do not normally see.

Snow and Ice: Go ahead and step outside. Are you cold? If you are cold, then your pets will be cold. If they are outdoor pets, make sure they have a place to go out of the elements, such as a doghouse or even a wooden box. Make sure they have warm dry blankets or straw inside. Make sure their food is kept where it will not be in the elements, and the water is clean and not ice covered. You can also use Vaseline or Musher's Secret on your pets paws to protect them from the ice and snow. Just remember, they feel also.

Birds: If you have bird feeders, put a little extra in them to help our feathered friends through the cold periods. And take your Hummingbird feeders inside at night during the cold weather to prevent it from freezing.

Older fur friends: Things to watch for when our pets grow older. Feline and Canine Dementia. Some time our older pets will wake up from a deep sleep and not realize where they are and have bouts of confusion. Speak calmly and reassure them things are ok. They will eventually realize where they are and be fine. Try to keep things as normal as possible.

Watch for signs of Cataracts. That will be a blue haze in their eyes. There are surgeries that can help, but they can be costly. Cataracts can be symptoms of age or many other diseases. One of those is quite common in older animals, especially in smaller breeds. It is Diabetes. It comes on quickly and can be deadly.

Symptoms are rapid weight loss, loss of appetite, excessive water drinking and extreme listlessness. Diabetes can be controlled with diet and medications. If you pet has any of these symptoms, make sure you contact you Veterinarian.

I hope you find this information helpful. We all love our pets and want the best for them.

Monthly Recipe

This month we are giving you two recipes. The first is a spring salad, and the second is a unique Irish Reuben Lasagna. Let us know how it turns out!

Pistachio Fruit Salad

- 1 8 oz. container Cool Whip
- 1 3 oz. package Instant Pistachio Pudding Mix
- 1 20 oz. can crushed pineapple, including juice
- 1 cup miniature marshmallows
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Mix all ingredients together and let set for 2 hours or overnight.

Reuben Lasagna

Combining two classic recipes into one, this delightfully unique Reuben lasagna is made with layers of tender corned beef, tangy sauerkraut, aged Swiss cheese, al dente pasta sheets and 1000 island ricotta caraway cream.

Prep Time 30 mins, Cook Time 50 mins., rest for 10 mins
Servings: 12

Ingredients

- 2.5 pounds shredded, fully-cooked corned beef (see recipe notes below)
- 1 (16-ounce) box lasagna noodles cooked al dente
- 16 ounces sauerkraut drained
- 2.5 cups Swiss cheese grated
- 1.5 cups mozzarella cheese grated
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese grated and divided
- 14 ounces 1000 island dressing divided
- 2 eggs
- 16 ounces ricotta cheese
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons caraway seeds plus more for garnish
- 2 tablespoons fresh parsley plus more for garnish

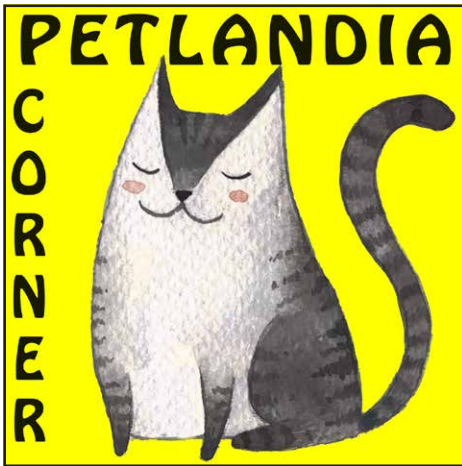

INSTRUCTIONS

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

1. While the oven preheats, grease a deep 9x13 rectangular baking pan or casserole dish. Set aside.
2. Next, combine corned beef with 1 1/2 cups of thousand island dressing in a large mixing bowl. Set aside.

3. Then, in a separate large mixing bowl, whisk two eggs. Add ricotta cheese, 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese, 1/4 cup 1000 island dressing and stir until fully combined. Season with salt, pepper, caraway seeds and parsley and mix until everything is blended. Set mixture aside.
4. Finally, in a small bowl, mix together grated Swiss mozzarella and remaining Parmesan cheeses to create a three-cheese blend. Set aside.
5. Now, take your prepared casserole dish and start assembling the lasagna. Note that you'll likely have about 3-4 layers of each filling so do your best to divvy up your ingredients to ensure relatively even layers.
6. Begin with a layer of the corned beef mixture. Then lay down a layer of cooked lasagna noodles to completely cover the meat layer. Next, spread a little of the ricotta mixture over the noodles. Sprinkle with grated cheeses and top with an even layer of sauerkraut.
7. Repeat the order of ingredients two more times, ending with a layer of the corned beef mixture. Top the lasagna with any of the remaining cheese blend. Or, by all means, grate a little more, if you have it, for an extra cheesy top layer.
8. Tightly cover your baking pan with tin foil and place lasagna into your preheated oven. Bake to 30 minutes and then uncover and bake for an additional 20 minutes. Lasagna is ready When cheese is melted, bubbling and starting to turn golden.
9. Remove from oven and let sit for at least 10 minutes before serving. To serve, garnish with additional caraway seeds and chopped fresh parsley and cut into squares. Enjoy.

Ricochet & Smudge

Submitted by ????????

The only time in my life when I did not have a cat was when I was in college. Pets were not allowed in the dorms. I got a cat as soon as I could after graduation. There have been several cats since then. Currently, I have two cats and they are both from animal rescue

My sixteen-year-old calico cat is from The Animal Defense League in San Antonio, Texas. The Animal Defense League is a no-kill shelter for several different kinds of animals. They had a young adult calico available for adoption. I thought she was beautiful. We learned she had not been adopted yet because she would not tolerate being picked up. My husband said she'd be fine after she got to know us, so we adopted her. We took her home, opened the carrier, and didn't see her again for weeks-- except for quick glimpses as she zipped around from one hiding place to another. We named her Ricochet. It took Ricochet months to get to know us. Now, she sits on my lap and purrs. She gets to decide when that will happen. Ricochet still hates to be picked up.

I brought Ricochet back to Oregon after my husband passed away in 2008. I arrived just three months before my father passed away. It was a rough year, and for some reason, I thought I needed another cat. I found a black cat about seven months old at The Cat Adoption Team in Sherwood, Oregon. The cat's name at the Shelter was Pasha. It was too dignified a name for the frolicking kitten I brought home. Family members started calling her Smudge and that name stuck.

Smudge.

Smudge made me laugh out loud. She had a unique way of getting up and down a cat climbing tree that involved back flips. She tried to catch the snowflakes she saw outside our third story windows. Smudge communicates with a low trilling chirp that might make one think she's learned the nuances of our language. For a few months she played fetch with a furry toy mouse. Apparently, that's a young cat's game; she won't fetch any more. Smudge kept giving me reasons to smile when I needed it most. But, just like Ricochet, Smudge hates to be picked up. She is now 13 years old and except for that don't-pick-me-up thing she has been a great pet.

COVID-19 Vaccine Transportation Options For Multnomah, Clackamas, and Washington County

The Oregon Health Authority, local public health agencies, and health systems are working quickly to build COVID-19 vaccination events in order to vaccinate as many Oregonians as possible. Many individuals who are eligible to be vaccinated in phase 1a or 1b do not have transportation to get to these events. They may need to rely on non-emergent medical transportation (NEMT) or other transportation options to access vaccination event sites.

Medicaid NEMT

For those members enrolled in the Oregon Health Plan (OHP), either with a Coordinated Care Organization (CCO) or as a Fee for Service (often known as “open card”) member, the transportation options include:

Trillium	MTM	877-583-1552
OHP Fee For Service	Tri-County MedLink	800-889-8726

Non-Medical or non-Medicaid specific Transportation options

For individuals not enrolled in OHP, who still need transportation assistance, there are other options. These include:
